

Headline BBC man admits killing ex lover
Date 17 Feb 2010
MediaTitle New Straits Times
Section World
Journalist N/A
Frequency Daily
Circ / Read 139,763 / 330,000

Language English
Page No 29
Article Size 38 cm²
Color One Spot Color
ADValue 858
PRValue 2,575

BBC man admits killing ex-lover

LONDON: Police said yesterday they would investigate BBC broadcaster Ray Gosling, 70, who said he killed a former lover who was dying from AIDS. "We had this agreement. If it got like that, I would end his life. And that's what I did," Gosling told the BBC, which aired his comments. "The doctors said there's nothing we could do and he was in terrible, terrible pain. I picked up the pillow and smothered him until he was dead. Sometimes, you have to do brave things and say ... bugger the law."