REPORT RELEASED

Malaysian AIDS Council (Mac) has released the HIV & Human Rights Mitigation Report 2013. As part of its European Union-funded Asia Action project, Mac compiled a total of 17 discriminatory cases reported to its Policy Department.

Most involved people who used drugs and who continued to be the target of harassment by law enforcement agencies. Also noteworthy were cases involving HIV positive university students whose diplomas were withheld on account of health status.

The report's executive summary included, among others, the fact that people living with HIV continue to face discrimination in the workplace although the infection has no correlation with losses in productivity.
