A new lease of life

Decades ago, HIV would have meant certain death. But now, with advances in diagnosis and treatment, HIV patients can expect to live to an age they would have reached even without the disease. One of these advances is a diagnostic test resulting from Roche's partnership with various clinicians and laboratories. As this viral loading test is capable of detecting extremely low HIV levels, it has been touted as an innovative and reliable aid for physicians in deciding the appropriate treatment for HIV patients.
